

DESERVEDLY FAMOUS.

Portraits of Persons who Have Earned Prominence.

Wm. Henry Smith, Chas. H. Spurgeon, H. J. Jewett, Clara Louise Kellogg, Clara H. B. B. Robinson and Others.

CHARLES HADDON SPUERGON.

This renowned Baptist clergyman announced recently, that he has delivered 1,800 sermons, all of which have been printed, after his revision of the shorthand notes. To this latter labor he has given a great deal of care. He estimates that five years has been required in preparing his sermons for the press. He is 50 years old, and was a pastor before he was eighteen, in a country town. At nineteen he went to London, and such was the power of his oratory that it was found necessary to construct a building to hold the crowds that came to hear him. This edifice was not capacious enough, so they built again and again, till at last the present "tabernacle," holding between 5,000 and 6,000 people, seems to be adequate and is always well filled. Mr. Spurgeon is remarkable for the plainness of his discourses and the common sense which pervades them, together with the homely illustrations and every day but practical applications he makes of his points.

Ex-President of the Erie Railroad.

HUGH J. JEWETT.

Mr. Jewett began life as a lawyer in Ohio, though he is a native of and received his education and studied law in Maryland. He was elected to the 43d congress from Ohio, and served from Dec. 1, 1873, to June 1874, when he resigned to accept the presidency of the Erie railroad, with a salary of $50,000 per year, this position he recently resigned, his successor being Mr. John King, of Baltimore.

Grace Before Meat.

The minister had been invited to dinner. While grace was being said Tommy eyed the unwelcome good things spread before him with pleasant anticipation. "Ma," he said, when the minister had concluded, "do you know why pa doesn't give thanks every day at the table?" His mother shot a warning glance at him. "Cause he only when the minister is here that we have anything worth givin' thanks for."

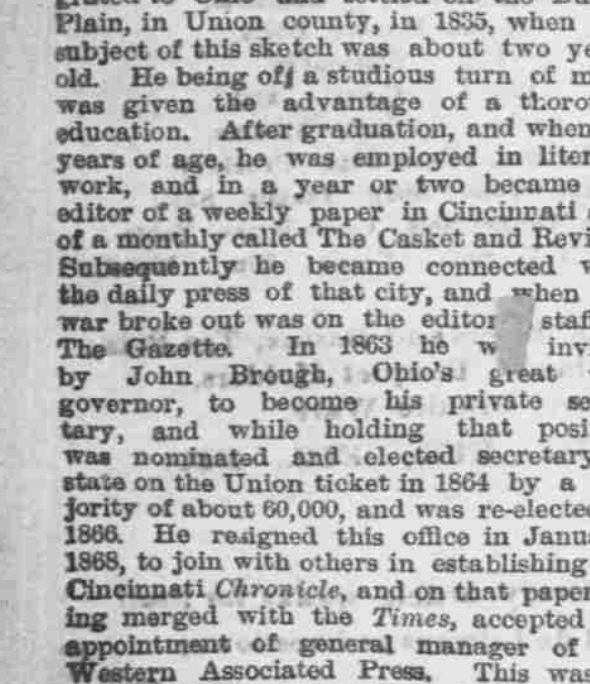

General Manager of the Associated Press.

BENJAMIN B. VALENTINE.

The young man named Fitznoodle who sat pictured with thin legs, big feet, and a high nose in many consecutive numbers of Puck is dead, to that publication at least. Mr. Benjamin B. Valentine, associated editor on Puck and author of the "Fitznoodle" papers, has come prominently before the public in connection with his litigation with the proprietors of that paper. Mr. Valentine has been managing editor from the start of this the first successful comic journal in America. A born Englishman, he is thoroughly American in spirit. He has been an extensive traveler, having performed the circuit of the globe twice. His judgment, conservative policy and vigorous style has had a marked effect on the paper. Mr. Valentine is well known among New York literary people and a member of the Lotus club.

The Government of the Celestials.

WILLIAM HENRY SMITH.

is a native of Columbia county, N. Y., and is descended from two old New England families. His father, William DeForest Smith, who was born in Litchfield county, Ct., in 1805, was a grandson of Bethel Smith, of Kent, who was a grandson of Rev. Henry Smith, a clergyman well known in the Connecticut valley. His mother was a daughter of Deacon Story Gott, of Spencertown, Columbia county, who was a lieutenant in the army during the Revolutionary war, and was descended from Daniel Gott, who settled in the Connecticut valley prior to 1800. The family was of Dutch origin, and came to America for religious freedom.

The parents of William Henry Smith emigrated to Ohio and settled on the Darby Plain, in Union county, in 1835, when the subject of this sketch was about two years old. He being of a studious turn of mind was given the advantage of a thorough education. After graduation, and when 21 years of age, he was employed in literary work, and in a year or two became the editor of a weekly paper in Cincinnati and of a monthly called The Casket and Review. Subsequently he became connected with the daily press of that city, and when the war broke out was on the editorial staff of The Gazette. In 1863 he was invited by John A. Brough, Ohio's governor, to become his private secretary, and while holding that position was nominated and elected secretary of state on the Union ticket in 1864 by a majority of about 60,000, and was re-elected in 1866. He resigned this office in January, 1868, to join with others in establishing the Cincinnati Chronicle, and on that paper being merged with the Times, accepted the appointment of general manager of the Western Associated Press. This was in January, 1870. The duties and responsibilities of this position have been enlarged by the union of the Western with the New York Associated Press in 1882. This business alliance, which is valuable to all of the papers interested, is due very largely to the fact and address of Mr. Smith, who is the general manager for the combination known as "The Associated Press," with headquarters ters in New York. When Rutherford B. Hayes was elected president he appointed Mr. Smith collector of customs for the port of Chicago. He held this office until after his commission had expired, and declined to permit his name to be used longer in connection with the office. Mr. Smith has written a great deal, his longest literary work being "The St. Clair Papers," two volumes octavo, which covers the years of the revolutionary war, government under the confederation, and the government of the northwestern territory under Gen. Arthur St. Clair.

A Celebrated American Soprano.

CLARA LOUISE KELLOGG.

From the time Miss Kellogg first made her bow to a public audience in the Academy of Music, New York, in 1861, at the age of 19, until to-day, her career has been a successful one. At her home in Sumner, S. C., she early displayed a remarkable talent for music, being able to read the most difficult passages when but 7 years old. She has several times visited London, achieving a constantly increasing fame. She has since carefully maintained her well-earned musical prestige and will give a series of concerts in this country during the coming season.

The Etiquette of Corn Cribbing.

[Brooklyn Eagle.] Ethel wishes to know "if she may eat corn from the cob, and if so, how?" We hasten to assure Ethel that she may. Polite society has recognized the fact that it is the proper thing to eat the corn from the cob, and no man now eating it cob and all is invited a second time to our best tables. The manner of devouring this delicious bivalve in its natural state varies with the strength and taste of the consumer. The destroyer may hold the cob in one hand in a perpendicular condition and shave the corn off with a dinner knife. If the browser is extremely dainty, he may prod off the corn one grain at a time with a fork. Thus he will preserve a high standing in society, but will not get any corn. In court circles it is permissible to hold the cob with one hand and nibble with the other, care being taken not to allow the nose and chin to meet on the other side of the cobs. But perhaps the only feeder who gets all the corn he wants, and gets it comfortably, is the epicure who clutches the cob in both hands, one at each end, sharpens his teeth, and gnaws away at the cob like a rat at a flour barrel.

A Preacher's Experience in Texas.

[San Antonio Standard.]

Holding services at a place one time I took up a collection for the support of missions. There was a poor old lady present who I noticed dropped a $5 gold piece in the hat. I knew she was very poor and not able to afford so much and thought she had intended to throw it in a quarter, but made a mistake. So next day I met her husband and said to him: "Look here, your wife put a $5 gold piece in the hat yesterday. I think she must have made a mistake." "No, no," he replied, "my wife didn't make no mistake. She don't fling often, but let me tell you when she flings she flings."

ROYAL HAWAIIAN HOTEL.

The Royal Hawaiian Hotel is one of the leading architectural structures of Honolulu. The grounds upon which it stands comprise an entire square of about four acres, fronting on Hotel Street. This large area affords ample room for a lawn and beautiful walks, which are laid out most artistically with flowering plants and tropical trees. There are twelve pretty cottages within this charming enclosure, all under the Hotel management. The Hotel and cottages afford accommodations for 200 guests. The basement of the Hotel contains the finest billiard hall in the city; also, a first-class bar, well stocked with fine wines and liquors.

The main entrance is on the second floor, to the right of which are the elegantly furnished parlors. A broad passage-way leads from the main hall to the dining-room. These apartments open on to broad verandas, where a magnificent view of the Nuuanu Mountains may be seen through the wealth of tropical foliage that surrounds the balconies.

The fare dispensed is the best the market affords, and is first-class in all respects. Hotel and cottages are supplied with pure water from an artesian well on the premises. The Clerk's office is furnished with the Telephone, by which communication is had with the leading business firms of the city.
